GRIDIRON CLUB ROASTS MANY

Roosevelt and "Back From Elba" Movement Gets Attention at Hands of Washington Newspaper Men.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—The members of the "Back From Elba" Club, as the most engrossed organization of the times, strutted on the mimic stage of the Gridiron Club at its annual dinner tonight.

That sterling play, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was given in one act, but it was called "Uncle Joe's Cabin," and depicted the "insurgent" situation in the House of Representatives. Uncle Joe appeared as Marks, the Speaker.

"Kick them in the slats," he shouted. Waving his hands at the cowering insurgents, "I'm a regular, and everybody who isn't with me is irregular. If I vote twenty-two Democrats to pass a rule, it's treason. If anybody else does it, it's treason."

Uncle Joe addressed the club in blank verse: There was a young Speaker named Cannon Who tried to appoint a committee; But the insurgents got gay And stepped on his features.

Oh, come, let us lean against the river. There was a small bunch that insurged. And they slapped a certain person on the wrist. But when it comes to resigning, I'll see you in—Kokomo. Oh, firemen, will you kindly save my child?

There is a thing in politics called pap. And statesmen need it in their business. But if you can't deliver the goods at home, What's the use of being an insurgent? God pity the poor fishermen at sea.

The High Price Crusade. The crusade against the high prices was too timely a topic to be overlooked. It was embodied in prose and poetry. First of all appeared the infant industries, the Lumber Trust, Whisky Trust, Beer Trust, Coal Trust and Tobacco Trust, each being represented by a member of the club, attired in pinafores and the cutest little pants that ever adorned an infantile form.

Then in came the ultimate consumers, a band of hollow cheeked, hatless and vestless creatures, who were made to appear by the art of the official costumer as if they were in the last stages of the "struggle for existence."

"I am afraid of these people," wailed the Tobacco Trust. "I want my mother."

"Boo-hoo!" wept the other trusts. "We all want our mothers."

"Who is your mother?" asked one of the ultimate consumers.

"Mrs. Taft is the mother of trusts," was the reply. This was a verse from one of the chants of the trust magnates, to the air of a popular song:

Oh, the ultimate consumer always has to come to us, 'Cause he hasn't any other place to go. He will rise in indignation; he will make an awful fuss, 'Cause he hasn't any other place to go.

Why are all our guests assembled here tonight in glad array? Why do Congressmen keep coming to our city day by day? Why did Roosevelt grab a gun and beat it clear to Africa? 'Cause he hadn't any other place to go.

On Nicaragua incident. The fun started almost as soon as the guests were seated with a tangle over the inauguration of the new president of the club—Scott C. Bone, editor of the Washington Herald—for entering untimely upon the scene, came El Presidente Zelaya, with his army, composed of half a dozen generals in filibustian uniforms, and one lone private. Zelaya, looking for a job, had picked out the presidency of the Gridiron Club as suitable for him, and was ejected only by the threat that Secretary Knox was approaching. Scarcely had peace and quiet been restored when another interruption came, when to the strains of the "Marseillaise" entered the "Back From Elba Club," clad in Napoleonic uniforms, and including personifications of public men who have been identified by common report with the movement to return Roosevelt to the White House.

The "Big Stick" figured in this, and in the fierce glare of the electric light and in defiance of all rules of secret orders, and in the presence of several hundred "Outlanders" were dragged forth and duly initiated the two unfortunate neophytes of the Gridiron Club. George Edmund Miller, resident correspondent of the Detroit News, and John Callan O'Laughlin of the Chicago Tribune. They were made to forswear all of the policies of their respective newspapers and to pledge themselves to be on the pier to welcome "The Only One" when he returned from Africa, all this to the chant of "When

SENATOR COELHO VISITS WAILUKU

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Wailuku, Maui, Feb. 18.—Senator W. J. Coelho was in Wailuku this week and after seeing some of his many friends, returned to Honolulu last Wednesday by the Claudine. Senator and Mrs. S. E. Kalama are expected back on Maui next week. It's almost a year since the Senator and his wife left for Honolulu to attend the session of the Legislature. Whether the Senator will take up the active management of the coming campaign the future alone will tell, for the Senator is not certain himself. His numerous friends will welcome both him and his estimable wife to the land of their birth.

Teddy Comes Sailing Home, Again, Hurrah.

The new order of things in the State Department was disclosed in a spirit illustrative of a gathering of Secretary Knox and his faithful assistants and bureau chiefs of recent creation. There was an under secretary and a "Secretary of Near-sighted Affairs," and one of "Far-Sighted Affairs," and there was a wonderful exhibition of "short-sleeved diplomacy," resulting in the summary settlement of the Nicaraguan question and the Chinese railroad imbroglio and other matters that have engaged the attention of the diplomatic branch of the Government for the past few months.

BREWER AGREED TO BUY TITLE

Paid Many Thousands, but Failed to Land the Baronetcy—Countess of Warwick Mixed Up in Farce Brewer Demands Money Back.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Much mystery is thrown about a suit, Wyatt vs. the Countess of Warwick, which was called yesterday in the King's Bench Court, over which the Lord Chief Justice presided, and was postponed with the view of settling it out of court.

The World correspondent is informed that there would have been sensational developments had the suit been heard. Systematic sale of titles by aristocrats in the royal circle would have been exposed.

Mr. Wyatt is a very wealthy brewer with social aspirations. The story goes that about a year ago he was told by a prominent member of the principal Tory club, the Carlton, that if he wished to be made a baronet he must attain his ambition by paying $100,000.

Mr. Wyatt satisfied himself that the persons making the proposition could make good, and he agreed to pay $100,000, with the understanding that a baronetcy would be given him among the titles and honors which the King conferred on his last birthday.

Some time before the list was to appear Mr. Wyatt was informed by the person who had approached him originally that he must pay $50,000 to principals in the negotiations, who, it is said, he named as the Countess of Warwick and a high official of Buckingham Palace. The Countess of Warwick, who, as Lady Brooke, was the "babbling brook" of the Tranby Croft scandal, is famous now for her tendencies.

Mr. Wyatt objected to paying such a large sum until the baronetcy was "delivered," but his objections were overcome and he paid it.

But when the list of birthday honors was published his name was not on it. Naturally Mr. Wyatt was indignant and demanded his $50,000. He was persuaded that the coveted title would be given him when the next list of honors should appear; that it was withheld only because certain necessary formalities had to be gone through with.

Becoming suspicious, Mr. Wyatt made inquiries and learned that his name had not even been suggested to the King.

Of course if the circumstances as alleged became public, the people would have learned too much about how titles are won. So a mighty effort is being made to placate Mr. Wyatt. He insists on having his money back, but the Countess of Warwick and the court officials are not in a financial position to return it.

There seems to be no doubt that the baronetcy would have been conferred but for some untoward circumstance which is not explained. It is now alleged that the Countess did not act in good faith.

The Earl of Warwick, well known in New York, left England this week to take cure at a German spa—rather an unusual time of year for that journey. The Countess accompanied him, although, usually, they do not travel together.

It is said the Countess desired to use her share of Mr. Wyatt's money to add to the Socialist election funds at this general election.

HONORED WITH LUAW.

(Special to the Bulletin.)

WAILUKU, Maui, Feb. 18.—The officers and members of the Wailuku Christian Endeavorers gave a luau last Tuesday afternoon at the Wailuku Town Hall in honor of Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Kellipio, both of whom have been doing excellent work in Central Maui. There were nearly sixty present. Mr. Keola was chosen master of ceremonies, and he called upon the following ladies and gentlemen to make addresses: Auditor Wilcox, Judge J. W. Kalua; Judge A. N. Kepoika, President P. N. Kahokuoluna of Maui C. E., Mrs. Emma Cornwell, Revs. J. Kallio, Kellipio, Manase and L. B. Kaumeheua; Sheriff W. E. Saffery, Hon. R. J. K. Nawahine, Assessor J. H. Kuwewa and Hon. M. P. Waiwaiolo. The speech-making lasted nearly two hours, and from the Town Hall the banquets repaired to the Kaunamau church, where Rev. and Mrs. L. D. Kellipio conducted a meeting, which was one of the largest and most enthusiastic held in Kaunamau.
